PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS:

The 2000 U.S. Census has documented that 82 million adults in the United States are not married; that nearly half of the nation's households are headed by unmarried adults; and the U.S. Department of Labor reports that 40 percent of the workforce is unmarried; and

WHEREAS:

The living arrangements of unmarried Americans are diverse, with 27 million adults living alone, nearly 10 million single parents raising their children, and 45 million adults living with unmarried adult family members or in other types of unmarried households; and

WHEREAS:

Many people are single by choice while other people are unmarried due to circumstances beyond their control, and as the events of September 11, 2001 demonstrate, a person's marital status may change abruptly due to a tragedy; and

WHEREAS:

Unmarried men and women make significant contributions to society in a wide variety of ways – as productive employees, as dutiful taxpayers, as loving family members, as good neighbors and as dedicated volunteers in civic and charitable causes; and

WHEREAS:

The 2000 Census reports that a large percent of households in Jacksonville, Florida are headed by unmarried or single adults; and

WHEREAS:

Through its website (unmarriedAmerica.org), the American Association for Single People (AASP) is a leading provider of information and resources for and about unmarried Americans, and through its educational programs AASP works to improve the quality of life and secure a better future for this large constituency; and

WHEREAS:

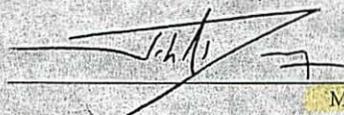

AASP is commemorating the third week of September as Unmarried and Single Americans Week and has created a website (nationalUSAweek.org) for this occasion.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JOHN A. DELANEY, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of Jacksonville, Florida, do hereby proclaim September 15-21, 2002 as

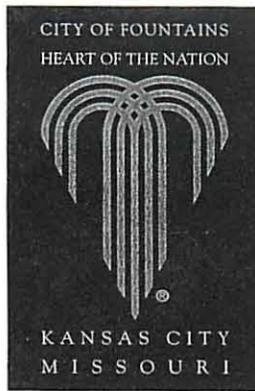

UNMARRIED AND SINGLE AMERICANS WEEK

and urge citizens to join me in recognizing and commending the many outstanding contributions that our unmarried and single citizens have made and continue to make for the betterment of our city.

IN WITNESS THEREOF, this 3rd day of July

MAYOR

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the American Association for Single People has designated September 15-21, 2002, as a time to salute adults who are not married. According to the AASP, of the 287,849,761 Americans, approximately 82 million are adults who are not married; and

WHEREAS, Americans who are not married live in a variety of households. Some live alone, some with their children, and others with other adults; and

WHEREAS, it is clear that one's marital status is of little or no relevance when we assess the contributions people can (and do) make to their communities. As members of the labor force and representatives of all professions and vocations, single people are clearly full participants in the life of this society; and

WHEREAS, the recent Census reported that in Kansas City, Missouri, among adults age fifteen and over, 48% were married and 52% were not; and

WHEREAS, the goal of the American Association for Single People is to improve the quality of life for single people. Laws, business practices and beliefs that punish or stigmatize the unmarried are the focus of the group's efforts.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, KAY BARNES, MAYOR of KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, do hereby recognize September 15-21, 2002, as

Unmarried and Single Americans Week

in Kansas City, Missouri.

KAY BARNES, MAYOR

Done this 23rd day of August 2002.
