Outstanding Advocate for Tax Reform

John O. Fox

The American Association for Single People is pleased to present this award for Outstanding Tax Reform Advocate to John O. Fox.

John O. Fox teaches tax policy at Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Massachusetts. He is the author of "If Americans Really Understood the Income Tax" and "10 Tax Questions the Candidates Don't Want You To Ask."

Both books include significant segments arguing that the federal income tax laws are unfair to single people, particularly to low-income singles without dependents. On April 11, 2004, the Washington Post published his commentary entitled "For Singles, April Really is the Cruellest Month." In his public speaking engagements, Fox mentions how single taxpayers are treated unfairly under current law.

For his efforts to bring more fairness into the federal tax laws, John O. Fox, while married with two children, is truly an outstanding advocate for tax reform.
